The first part of the test is taken on the acupuncture meridians to correlate with organs and areas of the body. It is similar to a lie detector test.

The imbalances indicate which part of the body is stressed or in a weakened condition.

At this point you can either stop or continue testing.

The second part of the test allows one to examine various types of imbalances.

One can then address what type treatment or diet is best suited for your patient.

The third part can identify many hundreds of substances and environmental factors to which one has been exposed for reactions.

The Peripheral Nerve Data Access points are on the hands & feet and the energy from them can be measured and compared.

Quick testing for Organ systems (sarcodes)
Nosodes (disease)
Remedies, Bio-terrain,
And more

A EAV Screening May Consist Of Three Sections.

- The first part of the screening, electrical conductivity readings are taken on the acupuncture meridians on the hands and feet which correlate with the organs and areas of the body. It is similar to a lie detector test.
- The body responds with various readings which corresponded to an optimal level, stressed level or weakened level.
- The second allows one to examine various types of imbalances and consider ways to rebalance the body.
- One can then address what type treatment or diet is the best suited for your body.
- The third part may consist of assessing over hundreds of substances and environmental factors to which one has been exposed for reactions. virus, bacteria, chemicals, drugs, environmental, etc.
